

THE INFINITE DAISY CHAINS

"Kristina's airy vocals soon join in along with ethereal synths and sparse drumbeats to create a pleasantly dreamlike atmosphere. The driving yet laidback rhythms of a drum machine and bass guitar then set the track into a relaxed groove during the choruses, while acoustic guitar strums and reverb-laden electric guitar melodies complement the vocals rather well."

"The Infinite Daisy Chains blur the lines of genre with a sound reminiscent of shoegaze artists like Lush and My Bloody Valentine, combining smooth dream pop sounds and electropop in their own unique manner."

"While some dream pop is, well, simply dreamy, Ian and Kristina infuse such a dancy bounce and vibe here. The entire production is percolating with percussion all around the deep beats that give the song a shuffle and a slide. Pop psychedelia with a funky bottom deserving of a Soul Train dance line."

"Their sonic palette is luscious and diverse, exploring a myriad of different instruments that arrange from traditional live instrumentation to synthesizers and drum machines. As a result, the 'Infinite' in their name seems all the more appropriate."
